The first order of business was the nomination of a candidate for sheriff. Joe Roberts was placed in nomination by J. F. Hemenway and C. C. Keeler was placed in nomination by T. E. Campbell. A ballot being taken resulted in 73 votes for Roberts and 43 for Keeler.

For the council, T. E. Campbell nominated E. A. Haggott and there being no other nominations the secretary was instructed to cast the unanimous vote of the convention for Mr. Haggott.

For the assembly, B. H. Smith nominated Mark Bradley, of Cherry Creek; J. T. Jones nominated Fred E. Biles of Chaparral and J. L. Hall nominated W. J. Gilbert of Gilbert and the nomination of the three candidates was made unanimous.

For district attorney, J. R. Walls placed the name of Leroy Anderson before the convention and J. K. Mason named E. S. Clark. The ballot resulted in Clark getting 76 votes and Anderson 31.

At this point in the proceedings a recess was taken until 8 o'clock.

On reconvening, business was dispatched with alacrity and at 9:30 the convention adjourned sine die.

The first business transacted at the evening session was the withdrawal of Judge W. J. Gilbert from the legislative race which was announced by Chairman Haggott with regrets.

E. S. Clark placed in nomination W. H. Clark and W. H. Hall named Leroy Anderson for the position. As Mr. Clark was not present and as it was not known definitely whether he would accept, Mr. Clark, who nominated him, withdrew his name and Anderson was nominated by the convention by acclamation.

W. A. Cline being the only candidate named for treasurer received the unanimous vote of the convention by acclamation.

F. E. Jordan was nominated in a similar manner for recorder.

J. L. Hall was placed in nomination for probate judge but declined when J. P. Bauder was nominated by acclamation.

For superintendent of schools Eli S. Perkins of the Martinez News-Herald and the Phenix Gazette was nominated by acclamation.

The names of four men were presented to the convention as candidates for supervisor, being A. S. Haskell Joseph Dougherty, J. H. Lee and P. Fitzgerald. J. H. Lee who was present as a delegate declined and T. C. Hill who placed the name of Mr. Fitzgerald in nomination withdrew his name and Haskell and Dougherty were nominated by a unanimous vote.

A resolution was then introduced and passed constituting each delegate present a member of the county central committee for his precinct and empowering the county central committee to fill any vacancy on the ticket which might occur.

T. C. Job, J. S. Calles, Dr. J. R. Walls, Fen S. Hildreth and Robert Brown was appointed by the chair as a committee to confer with the candidates in reference to the selection of an executive committee to conduct the campaign.

Dr. J. R. Walls, W. S. Head, T. E. Campbell, E. S. Jones and B. H. Smith were appointed a committee to select thirty-nine delegates to the territorial convention and on motion their action was to be final.

A vote of thanks was then tendered to Chairman W. C. Bashford, and his associates, of the retiring county central committee and the splendid work performed by them and the results achieved were commended in the most flattering terms.

The Eagles were similarly thanked by the convention for giving up their hall on their regular meeting night to the convention, then Chairman Haggott, was voted thanks for the able and impartial manner in which he had presided over the convention and Secretary Robinson were also voted thanks for the efficient manner in which they had performed their duties.

The convention then adjourned sine die with three cheers and a tiger for the grand old party and the candidates nominated by it for the county offices.

SIDE NOTES.

When the question of nominating candidates for supervisor was before the convention W. S. Head made a stirring speech arraigning the business methods of the present board of supervisors. His criticisms, while very pointed and emphatic, were made in a dignified, but very forcible manner. Referring to the latest piece of extravagance indulged in by the board, the awarding of a contract for a heating system for the court house, he said it entitled it to the name of the "hot air board," and said that while the members of the board are conducting the business of the county in a comfortably heated room, the taxpayer would be out gathering grease wood brush or digging mesquite roots to take the chill off his domicile that he might be able to pay the taxes imposed on him by the board for their comfort and for the many other extravagances, indulged in by them. His speech was deafeningly applauded by the convention.

The convention was harmonious throughout and the party will enter into the campaign with a united front pledged to economy in public expenditures and to the reduction of the fees of the sheriff's office.

The convention was held in Odd Fellows hall which was very beautifully decorated for the occasion as well as for the meeting of the territorial convention on Saturday. The republican committee rented both the large hall and banquet hall for three days for convention purposes.

The complete ticket as nominated is as follows:

For the legislative council--E. A. Haggott, of Mayer.

Legislative assembly--Leroy Anderson, of Prescott, F. E. Biles of Chaparral, Mark Bradley, of Cherry Creek.

Sheriff--Joe Roberts, of Prescott.

District attorney--E. S. Clark of Prescott.

Recorder--F. E. Jordan, of Prescott.

Treasurer--W. A. Cline, of Prescott.

Probate judge--J. P. Bauder, of Prescott.

Superintendent of schools--Eli S. Perkins, of Martinez.

Supervisors--A. S. Haskell, of Jerome and Joseph Dougherty of Prescott.

Democratic Primaries.

Our democratic brethren held their primaries on Saturday while the republicans were doing politics in Odd Fellows hall, preparatory to nominating the next delegate to congress. There were two tickets in the field, one an out and out Storm ticket for sheriff and the other a "Jim Lowry ticket." The latter it is said was a sort of partnership affair in which Hooker, of Jerome had a half interest, Lowry agreeing to give him half of the Prescott delegation, and then take chances of beating him.

Storm has been in the court house for four years, and his experience in the treasurer's office has put a good official taste in his mouth, and he would like to have the sheriff's office now for the next four years. Still his modesty prevented him from announcing his candidacy.

Each candidate had five carriages out to carry voters to the polls, and friends of each were busy all day pressing voters into service. The Lowry ticket won the election in Prescott. Lowry also secured the McCabe and the Crown King delegations as well as a number of others which have been heard from. The two tickets in Prescott, follow:

LOWRY--James O'Neal, John H. Robinson, Homer R. Wood, A. A. Johns, J. C. West, W. J. Mulvenon, Archie Lockhart, Joe Archambeau, R. W. Meador, Earl E. Smith, T. G. Norris, Dr. T. B. Davis, J. P. Dillon, R. Ming, Wm. Gammill, C. P. Hicks, Burt Davis, B. M. Belcher, S. L. Pattee, S. A. Prince. STORM--James P. Storm, Jack Wilson, J. Sullivan, Robert Burch, Frank Burrell, L. S. Colwell, Tom Pickett, A. J. Head, Joe Dillon, P. W. O'Sullivan, Charles Kearley, Carl Kellar, Charles Colquett, George Wood, Al Marsh, Dennis A. Burke, Lucius R. Barrow, Henry Stuthman, T. E. Fitzsimmons, Joe W. Hobbs.

Making an Early Start.

The following two items in the Courier this morning shows that the democrats are "scared up" over the prospect of republican success in this county, and that the work of misrepresentation has commenced this early in the campaign:

"Now there is a report out that one of the republican candidates for supervisor thinks of withdrawing from the race. It would be the part of reason for the whole ticket to withdraw, as it stands no chance of election."

"The attempt to saddle the republican nomination for probate judge on J. B. Bauder did not succeed, as he declines to make the race. The republicans will have a mighty hard time to get anybody to run for that office."

"The report out that one of the republican candidates for supervisor thinks of withdrawing" was promulgated by a democrat and echoed by another democrat and is entirely without foundation.

The other item in reference to Mr. Bauder is equally groundless. Mr. Bauder has not declined to make the race for probate judge, but on the contrary has decided to make a most vigorous campaign and is confident of winning the race too.

For a long time John L. Sullivan was thought to be invincible as a prize fighter but he finally met his Waterloo. Just so with these invincible democrats, sooner or later they will meet defeat, and a few of them are slated for it this year.

No Truth in It.

The report that Jos. Dougherty contemplates withdrawing from the republican ticket as a candidate for supervisor, and when he finally decides to do so that he will announce it through democratic sources, seems to be preposterous on the face of it. If he contemplates such action he would naturally make the announcement first to the republican central committee. The fact that Mr. Dougherty has no such intention whatever is apparent from the fact that in conversation with him at the railroad station on Tuesday just prior to his departure for California he informed the Journal-Miner editor that that he would return early in October and would make an active canvass for the position. That since he had been nominated he was anxious to be elected and would use every effort to do so and if elected will serve the people faithfully, in the position. Further than this Mr. Dougherty made arrangements prior to leaving for the payment of any assessment which might be made on him for the expenses of the campaign.

Let no voter be fooled or deceived by these democratic reports of candidates withdrawing. Should any candidates withdraw such notice will naturally come from the central committee.

BUSTAMANTE, THE SLAYER OF JUSTICE REYNOLDS, CAPTURED

Deputy Sheriff Welch of Columbia Makes Arrest Without Resistance--He Claims Act Was Done in Self Defense.

Sheriff Roberts returned on Wednesday evening from Crown King where he had been searching for Bustamante, the murderer of Justice Reynolds ever since Saturday morning, September 10. On Thursday morning before he was out of bed, he received a telephone call from Castle Creek hot springs, announcing that his deputy at Columbia, named Welch was at that point with the much wanted desperado.

The story of his arrest is a very short one. Bustamante appeared at Columbia on Wednesday evening about 6 o'clock, and Deputy Welch who had been given a good description of the man recognized him, on sight as he was coming down the trail. He engaged Bustamante in conversation in a casual way, and asked him to have something to eat. As Bustamante afterward said that he had not eaten anything for two days the invitation was very readily accepted.

Bustamante was armed with a Sharp's rifle which he kept conveniently near him, but which it was afterwards found had only one cartridge in it. He also had the six shooter on him with which he shot Justice Reynolds, and after his arrest it was found that it only contained two loads, and he had no extra cartridges with him.

After supper Welch invited him to remain all night with him which at first Bustamante agreed to do, but about 8 o'clock he changed his mind and said he would proceed on his journey although he did not state where he was going.

Welch parleyed with him for awhile and finally under pretext of buying his gun, for which he told him he would give two dollars, he was permitted to take the gun to examine.

When Welch first saw Bustamante approaching the place, and on recognizing him, he went and armed himself with his six shooter and in the meantime had been sparring for an opening when he could cover his man, and take him without a fight, if possible, though he was prepared, and had determined to take him at all hazards, if a peaceful opening did not present himself, as Welch is a determined man and not afraid to take an even break on an occasion of this kind.

The opportunity he was looking for presented itself when Bustamante handed him the gun.

He immediately threw the gun down on Bustamante and ordered him to throw up his hands which he did with alacrity, and while Welch held him covered with the gun, he asked a bystander to disarm him of his pistol.

The latter is a short barreled old broken stocked affair and is not a dangerous looking weapon, but served a deadly purpose in the hands of Bustamante when he fired at Reynolds.

Bustamante confessed to the killing of Reynolds but claimed that the act was committed in self defense.

Welch took his prisoner over to Hot Springs where he held him until the departure of the stage to Morristown when he took him there and was met by Sheriff Roberts who went down Thursday evening and returned on Friday with the self confessed murderer. A curious throng of several hundred people assembled at the station in Prescott prior to the arrival of the train, in order to obtain a view of the assassin.

A rumor was circulated in the crowd that an attempt was contemplated to lynch the man but it was entirely groundless, and no demonstration whatever was made, and the prisoner was taken quietly to the jail and locked up.

Deputies Nevin and Cook, whom Sheriff Roberts left at Crown King on Wednesday were notified on Thursday of the capture and returned to Prescott on Thursday evening.

The capture of this desperado is a very important one and reflects credit on the officers for their vigilance. Bustamante told Sheriff Roberts, that he saw them a number of times when they were searching for him in the vicinity of Crown King and that once or twice they were quite close to him.

One day they found his trail and were close up to him when darkness overtook them and they were unable to follow it further and during the night a rain set in which obliterated it so it could not be taken up the next morning.

Bustamante showed a considerable degree of cunning in his movements. He left Crown King camp on the trail leading to Middleton. He followed it for some distance until he came to a very rocky place when he left it and took to the rocks, jumping from one to another so that it was impossible to follow the trail. He kept this up until he reached the railroad when he presumably turned back towards Crown King walking on the ties until he came to another rocky place and left the track, and circled around the mountains towards the Oro Bella camp.

Sheriff Roberts appointed Welch as deputy about a year ago on account of Columbia being an out of the way place and having in mind at this time just such emergencies as this.

Further particulars learned since the shooting shows the killing of Reynolds to have been a cold blooded murder. It is said that Bustamante had said some days before that he felt like killing a "gringo." It is also stated that he assaulted a man at Crown King and Justice Reynolds had issued a warrant for his arrest. Bustamante followed him around all day abusing him for issuing the warrant for him, and jerking him around, and at such times Reynolds would tell him to go away, and to avoid trouble would get away from him.

Some time prior to the shooting Reynolds went into the back room of a saloon and laid down with his head on a saddle. Bustamante came along and seeing him lying there caught him and dragged him out into the saloon, abusing him as he had been during the day. The limit of endurance having been reached, Reynolds somewhat angrily told Bustamante to go away and quit annoying him, using somewhat strong language in doing so. Bustamante at once drew his gun and fired. Reynolds threw up his arms, as if to shield his face, and the first bullet grazed his elbow and powder burned the sleeve of his shirt. At the same time Reynolds was backing out of the room. The second shot went wide of the mark and just before the third shot was fired, Reynolds had reached the outside, and the bullet entered his body passing through the heart and he staggered a few feet and fell dead.

Reynolds was unarmed at the time and at no time during the day was he known to have had a weapon on him.
